

UPC launches Remote Record Function

Never miss a show thanks to UPC

Ireland, December 13, 2011 – UPC, the home digital entertainment, today launched a remote record function giving customers the freedom to record their favourite shows from anytime from anyplace.

How many times have we found ourselves out for dinner only to realise that we forgot to record our favourite show. With UPC's remote record function it gives customers access to an interactive seven day TV guide and enables you to record shows from your mobile, tablet or PC device. There is also a TV tips guide included for apple and smart phone users which highlights the broadcast times and channel locations of popular shows. In addition, it gives users the choice to select which digital+ box to record on if you have multiple boxes in the home.

This additional free service is part of UPC's commitment to continue to provide innovative technologies that enhance the customers' digital TV experience.

Dana Strong, CEO of UPC Ireland commented:

"We are constantly listening to what our customers want and looking for ways to deliver a better TV product for them to enjoy. Today's announcement is just the start of this process and we plan to continue to innovate and deliver exciting technologies that will give our customers greater flexibility and allow them to enjoy their TV the way they want to."
